The remainder of the business before the town meeting was completed last Tuesday night, and at the close of the session the meeting adjourned sine die Article 37, which was under discussion at the last meeting and was not finished with, was taken up first. Harlan F. Eveleth withdrew his substitute motion made at the previous meeting, stating that there had been a slight misunderstanding of the facts. Upon this withdrawal, the meeting voted to accept the recommendation of the committee that a committee of five be appointed by the Moderator to consider plans and location of building, for a school in the Jason Street district, and that this committee report at the meeting next November. $300 were appropriated for expenses of the committee under the

ATHLETIC MEET.

The annual indoor athletic meet between the K. K. C. H. I. and the Trapelo A. A. was held in the town hall, Belmont, Friday, April 11, the events beginning at 8 p.m. The events were as follows: Running high jump, broad jump, pole vault, potato race, tug of war, 15 yard hurdles. The winners were: High jump, Drayton, K. K. C. H. I.; broad jump, Slade, T. A. A.; pole vault, Bateman, K. K. C. H. I.; potato race, Mason, T. A. A. The tug of war was won by the K. K.s by one and one-half inches. The 15 yard hurdles were won by Benton, T. A. A. There were second and third places awarded. The final score was 27 to 23 in favor of the K. K. C. H. I.s. Excellent work was done by Bateman and Drayton for the K. K. and by "P." Mason for the T. A. A.s. After the meet, there was a basket-ball game between the K. K.s and the Waverley Tennis club. The K. K.s did excellent team work and defeated their opponents by a score of 8 to 3. The game was somewhat marred by the roughness of the Tennis club team.

The Belmont Orchestral club held a popular concert and dance in the town hall, last Saturday evening. The following program was rendered by the orchestra of 18 pieces under 'he direction of Edward M. > The Winchester Star is of opinion that the plan of selecting candidates for ap-pointment to the naval academy by compointment to the naval academy by competitive examination is likely to fall to pieces. The reason for this fear is that the successful candidate at the recent examination had been studying under a private tutor for five months, along the lines of the examination. This fact, the Starthinks, demonstrates that the plan is unfair, because it gives undue advantages to boys whose fathers can afford to hire private tutors for them, so that the poor boy has no chance.

private tutors for them, so that boy has no chance.

There is some force in this, but will the Star please suggest some better plan? Would it prohibit study under private tutors, or debar those who have had that help? The problem is to get the boy who is best fitted; what better way than by an examination? Perhaps the Star would like to go back to the old system, under which boys got their appointments as cadets by the political "pull" of their fathers.

In spite of the fact that the present relan seems to favor the sons of well-to-do men, who can employ tutors for their rian seems to favor the sons of well-todo men, who can employ tutors for their sons, the fact remains that the winning boys, generally, do not come from that class. Something more than tutors are necessary to make successful candidates.
It requires grit, persistency, determinadon and brains to enable a boy to win, and rich men's sons, ordinarily, are at a disadvantage in these things, owing to the fact that they live luxuriously and are not compelled to struggle. The poor man's son, of equal natural ability, who will apply himself, will usually win over the rich man's son. Whatever fault may be found with the competitive examination as a means of making selections, it is the very best ever devised, and is not likely to be abandoned.

Thus while the birds are gladly welcoming the advent of spring with their merry voices, and the woodsman is preparing to again enter his forest home, while the fish are frolicking in the pools and streams after their long season's imprisonment, the sportsman is not at all idle; he has cleaned and got in readiness all his paraphernalia; his camping outfit is being patched and repaired, and the faithful guide is anticipating a visit to those familiar haunts and woods where true enjoyment in the pursuit of nature's purest sport can be enjoyed.

CHESS.

There has been placed in the Robbins library recently a series of books on They must be read in regular order from the first as they constitute a new and very original mathematical theory of the game. Franklin B. Young, the writer, starts his theory with the proposition that chess is a science, and, moreover, is precisely the same as the science of war. He then goes on from one principle to another quite like geometry. He points out that other works on chess are not good because they give statements with no reasons. He therefore starts with reasons. If anyone in town plays chess, he will find the work both useful and interesting. We have ourselves had experience in using Mr Young's theories, and we can recommend them very highly. By the way, why is not a chess club in order in Arlington? There are all sorts of other clubs; it would seem that the ancient and valuable game of chess ought to have enough devotees in town to make a strong club.

Thomas Morton gives the above as ture for the heartache." In plainer and fuller English he might have said that walking is a sure cure for a thousand ills "that flesh is heir to." But, then, when one may ride in the electrics for the greater part of the day for five cents by the present system of "transfers," who is going to walk it may be asked! Well, that man or woman is the loser who will allow the electric car to rob him or her of the good, brisk walk that should be taken daily. There is no oth er exercise that calls into play so many muscles as does walking. #### NOT FAIR TO ALL CANDI-DATES.

The method of selecting candidates for West Point and Annapolis introduced into this district by Congressman McCall promises to fall to pieces because of the means that are resorted to to secure the coveted positions. The successful candidate at the examination, last Saturday, in the high school building, for the cadetship at Annapolis had been studying under a private tutor for Ave months and the courses of study were in line with those that came up at the examination. Therefore it will be seen that the other boys who had been taking the usual lines of study, such as are required in the high schools of the district, had no chance whatever in passing. While the method pursued by the successful boy may have been perfectly legitimate, yet all will admit that it was not fair to the other hoys. If continued it will prevent the young men of moderate means, no matter how worthy, from entering West Point or Annapolis, as only the sons of rich men will be able to afford the luxury of private tutors. The latter shows the fashionable sheath effect and in addition to the velvet a trimming of straps in inverted scallops stitched with Costicelli silk.

The new skirts are fitted close, at the hips, but flare very much indeed uclow the knees. A great many skirts with hip yokes are shown either of shirring, tuching or tiny bands, joined with a fancy open stitch. Some very attractive skirt models in sheer materials are laid harrow box-plaits from the waist to the knees and below that there is a prettily shaped flounce with insertions of cream lace and a garniture of narrow gathered ribbon.

LACK OF PROGRESS.

The 285th meeting of the eastern envocation of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts opened at the Church of St John the Evangelist, April 16, with the celebration of holy communion and a sermon by the Rev. Prescott Evarts, rector of Christ church, Cambridge. Cambridge.

In his sermon Mr. Evarts said that God loves to care for the things that has created, and that the evidence of the working of his spirit may be seen among men of even the most unpromise. ing material.

The speaker then referred to some of the signs which indicated lack of progress in the church. There is, he said, a growing ostentatiousness of worldliness among those who call themselves Christians. It would appear, too, that every individual at the present day feels conpetent to decide all questions for himself without consulting the church. But the church has had its difficulties in self without consulting the church. But the church has had its difficulties in every age, and it is not to be expected that the present age should be exempt from them. While there are unpromising signs, there are more signs which are promising. The church still stands as a permanent witness of the truth arevealed in Jesus Christ. It is not wasting its energies in honeless speculation. Referring to the hopeful indications in the realm of scientific thought, the speaker said that the general attitude of philosophy toward religion is more open now thar it was in the past generation. Recent scientific discussion has been making more and more for belief in an immortal life. Science at least does not deny the possibility of it.

Again, the scientific attitude toward miracles has changed. Scientific man hesitate to deny the possibility of God's manifestation in unusual ways.

does not deny the possibility of it.

Again, the scientific attitude toward miracles has changed. Scientific men hesitate to deny the possibility of God's manifestation in unusual ways, as they once did. It is well to recognize the fact that there is transition going in the realm of religious thought as well as in other directions. The activities of men of today, such as college settlements and the like, are taking a turn in the interest of the Christian cause. By these humanitarian experiments men are learning, through actual experience, that humanitarian interest alone are not sufficient to save the soul, and at this point the church supplies what is lacking. It is certain that God's spirit may be looked for in all that is sincere in the activities about us. After the church service, the convecation held a business meeting. After hearing the reports of the secretary and treasurer, most of the time was taken up with a discussion of the question as to whether the constitution should be changed to make members of the late southern convocation of the discussed ligible to membership in the eastern convocation. It was finally voted by a rising vote, to lay the whole matter on the table.

THE NINETEETH OF APRIL

The 19th. of April, 1775, will ever remain a focal date in American history. In the life of the nation, as well as in that of the individual, their are here and there periods of surpassing and intense interest, around which all else contres. The right to live comes only from that second birth which redeems from all that enslaves. Life in its higher significance must mean that manly independence, which asserts its rights with a courage to maintain them at whatever cost. The American people defined in an objective way, at Lexington and Concord, the national life. The events leading up to the American Revolution made up that school of discipline in which the early fathers were educated for that terrible struggle which happily resulted in American Independence. Lexington and Concord wrote on that morning of dipped in blood, that proclamation which asserted individual liberty and into that immortal Declaration of Independence which was to become the guide and chart of a free people. The story of Arlington, and Lexington, and Concord in that early struggle has been told over and over again, and it will be repeated and re-repeated through all the future of our history.

With the supreme idea of the everlasting right, "one with God is a majority."
The love of home will spur one on to his best. To be strongly backed by sad bereavement. the love of wife and children gives emphasis to all right effort. The battle at LETTER CARRIERS' REUNION Lexington was "home" written in italics. To defend one's fireside is a ministry of love. And so it was that the American soldier in that deadly war of seven years, could fight and pray and pray and fight, for he knew he was doing God's service in repelling the inministry of love. And so it was that vasion of the Mother Country. "Hands Off" was the American war-cry of 1775. To be let alone was the rightful demand of the colonies. The history of the Revolution is familiar to every school boy, so our only purpose at this time is to swing our hat and cheer our loudest for this day's celebration.

Let all rise and sing as they did at the completion of the battle monument. "By the rude bridge that arched the flood,

Their flag to April's breeze unfurled, Here once the embattl'd farmers stood, And fired the shot heard round the world.'

T. DE WITT TALMAGE

T. DeWitt Talmage, whose death occurred last Saturday, was a man singularly original in his manner of doing things. In his pulpit ministrations he was unlike anyone else. He was forceful and wonderfully dramatic. His approaches to men and women lay in a variety of ways. He always used the superlative to get at results, his sayings being strikingly original and startling.

As a word painter he had no equal; he spoke in italics. He gained the ear of the multitude through his own intense personality, and had the world for his audience. It happened that some years ago, we heard Dr. Talmage deliver in the Brooklyn Tabernacle the last of his series of sermons on a polygamous life. "It is claimed," he said, "by some, that a polygamous life is approved by Scriptural writings-but I stand here to declare that not a word can be found from Genesis to Revelations, that shows that a polygamous life was ever right" and then he added in his own peculiar way, "If ever such a life was right, I admit it would have been right when the population of the earth numbered less than now;" but, said he, "had it been right in those earlier days, Adam wouldn't have had a rib left." As a pulpit orator Talmage swayed the multitudes.-In no at all unless pushed on by the lightning and the cyclone. Dr. Talmage's death will be mourned the world over.

The exhibition by Miss Grace Dwelley's dancing classes, held last IWednesday night in Crescent hall, was a we lattended and successful affair. The program for the first part of the evening consisted of fancy dancing by the little folks of the classes, who carried off their several parts with great eclat. First came a march by the 18 members of the two classes, followed by a "Baby Polka," danced by six of the little girls, Marion Roup, Marion McLellan, Elizabeth Taylor, Grace Roup, Dorothy Currier and Mildred Partridge. The same six appeared again in a "garland" dance, each carrying garlands of pink flowers, and being dressed in Mother Hubbards with short sleeves. After a "roseleaf" dance by the entire class, Dorothy Currier, a maiden of five summers, danced the "butterfly," being received with great favor by the company. At the end, she received two bouquets, the presentation being made by Ralph Fay, a youth of six, who was very desirous of accompanying the presentation with a speech. The class next danced the Oxford minuet, after which Ida Lewis gave a violet skirt dance, in costume of pale blue sprinkled liberally with violets. See also received flowers. The six little girls then reappeared, attired in night-dresses, and carrying lighted candles and dolls, for a "good-night" drill. After the drill, they sang a nursery song, one at a time stopping, blowing out her candie, and going off as if to bed, until all had left. A brief march closed this portion of the program, which was most favorably received by the assemblage, as well it deserved, showing, as it did, not only the apteness of the performers, to the musle of Grey's orchestra. Many young people from out of town, from Cambridge. Dorchester and Melrose, and other towns near by, were present, making, with those from Arlington and the Heights, quite the largest gathering of the season.

Mr. Scott has shown himself a decidedly public spirited citizen, as well as one faithful to his trust, in the course which he has pursued. The chief point developed by the discussion was the fact that while there is nothing to be derived from the fund at present, there is no reason to doubt that the property will pan out in the end. The motion to postpone the matter indefinitely was carried, ayes, 63; nays, 8. Under Articles 9 and 10, a brief controversy arose over the cost of maintaining the town's poor. B. F. Brown, finding upon inquiry that there are but six individuals upon the poor farm the present year, suggested the selling of the farm and the boarding out of the inmates. His suggestion, put in the asked to report upon the advisability of selling the farm, was carried by vote of the meeting. #### BLONDIN'S TRUNK.

May Have Been in Depot-Canvas-Covered Trunk Traced to Lexington Not Seen Since—Case Seems to Have Acquired Local Interest.

It has turned out that the famous Blondin case has acquired a local flavor. Everyone knows how the body of Blondin's wife was found in Chelmsford a year ago, and that nothing of much importance could be found about the matter until Blondin was taken a month ago in New York. Then it be-came of the greatest importance to trace a trunk which is known to have been taken from Blondin's room in Green street, Boston, to the North Station April 30, 1901, about 5 or 5.30 P. M. It is known that this trunk left that room at that time, that the trunk arrived at the North Station, and now the question is to trace the trunk after it left Boston. Nearly all the trunks which left the North Station April 30, 1901, have been traced to their destination. There are a few left, however. Blondin's trunk was one with a canvas cover. Such a truck arrived in Lexington about 7.30 P. M. April 30, 1901. The number of the check was 78320. It is of course not known whether this trunk is the one taken from Green street, that very afternoon. But just supposing it should be, the inference would be like this; hat the murder took place on Greez street, that the body of the murdered woman was put into the trunk, taken to the North Station, brought to Lexington, put off the train and taken somehow or other to Chelmsford, the body taken out, and the trunk destroyed. But as a matter of FACT, this trunk, which was like Blondin's, was put off the train at Lexington and there all trace of it disappears entirely. What the police are anxious to find out is, what became of this canvas covered trunk, whether Blondin's or not. No teams were let from any of the stables that night. Any information about a canvas covered trunk, which was taken from the station the night of April 30. 1901, will be more than welcome to the police, because it is necessary to trace every single trunk which left Boston that day, and therefore just as essential to find out that this particular trunk is not the on · taken from Green street, as it is to find out that it is the Miss Smith was undoubtedly the favorite of the evening, and deserved to be. She had great courage to undertake to render so difficult a piece as "Priscilla and John Alden," the metre of which is not particularly suited to the English language, or to reciting. Her rendition might also have been shorter. However, Miss Smith's second number was all that could be desired. And in her second encore, "Seein' things at night," she captivated her audience completely. Miss Chaa.berlain, the whistling soloist, was best in her own composition "York Staccato" and the encores which followed. The original cadenzas and bird calls in the Mocking Bird were perfect imitations. "Way down upon the Swanee River" and "Yankee Doodle" with variations were also greatly enjoyed by the audience. The whole program was uniformly good throughout and almost every number received on any almost every number received on any almost every number received on the control of the control and almost every number received an en-core. The high soprano of Miss Bowles and the contratto of Miss Austin were bighly appreciated, as usual, and the quartette was, it is needless to say, of the first rank.

> HANCOCK CHURCH ENTERTAIN-MENT.

A very delightful entertainment took place at the Hancock church, Tuesday evening. Miss Chamberlain read nost charmingly "The Vision of Sir Launfai," "The Rhajput Nurse," by Edwin Annold, and other pleces from Kipling. Miss Redman sang "The Rosary," by Nevin, and other songs by the same composer. The decorations were in keeping with the 19th of April and very unique.

OLD BELFRY CLUB.

The clubhouse will be open all day to-day, with a concert and dance this evening, free to members of the club. Odell's orchestra, six pieces, will furnish the music for both concert and dancing; concert from eight until nine, and dancing from nine until twelve. Refreshments will be served between nine and eleven on the bowling alleys. For the convenience of East Lexington and Arlington Heights people a special car will leave Muzzey street at 12.10 a.m.

The committee chosen to nominate officers for the club year of 1902-1903 has made the following nominations President, Frank E. Clark; first vice-president, W. J. Luke; second vice-president, Mrs. H. M. Saben; third vice-president, Miss Clara J. Bigelow; secretary, C. E. Glynn; treasurer, C. T. West; executive committee, E. C. Stevens, H. L. Houghton, L. T. Redman, W. R. Champney, G. H. Childs.

The recital given by Mrs. Whiting took place Tuesday afternoon. The stage was decorated with flowers. Mrs. Whiting received, assisted by her daughter, Miss Grace Whiting. The reading was from "A Tale of Two Citles," and was divided into two parts. This best work of Dickens was read by Miss Chamberlain with a great deal of feeling. But her rendition was not overdone as so often haption was not overdone as so often happens. At the close of the readings, frappe and fancy cakes were served and a social time enjoyed, during which Miss Chamberlain was introduced to many of the ladies. The hall was filled to its seating

There were two matches last Tuesday evening in the Mystic Valley series, and neither affected the standing in the least. Medford won two out of three from Old Belfry, the margins being substantial. The feature of this match was the breaking of the league record for single. H. Teel got it with 115, beating Philbrick's old mark by one pin. At Medford

BARONESS VON OLNHAUSEN.

BARONESS VON OLNHAUSEN.

Baroness von Olnhausen, nee Mary Phinney, died at the home of her brothers, and the age of 85 years. Born in Lexington in 1817, after her education was completed she went to Manchester, N. H., where later she met and married a Saxton nobleman Baron von Olnhausen. After a brief period, the baron died, this occurring but a few years previous to the Civil war. The baroness volunteered as a nurse, and with some difficulty secured her commission, serving throughout the four years. On the breaking out of the Franco-Prussian war, she determined to serve her husband's people in the same capacity, and by perseverance secured an appointment with the Germans, and for her serv ces received the iron cross at the hands of the old Emperor William. She was the only Anerican woman, except Clara Barton, to be the recipient of this cross. The imedal of merit' also was awarded to her, the highest honor conferred for brayery in war, but was lost on the way over, the letter accompanying it being received. The iron cross and a handker-chief presented to her by King Ludwig, of Bayaria, have been bequeathed by her to the Historical society. The funeral services were conducted at the Mt. Auburn cemetery chapel, Monday afternoon, and consisted of prayers and a brief eulogy by Rev. Car ton A. A FALSE IMPRESSION RECTIFIED.

A week ago last Thursday morning.
Miss Carleton, of the Hancock school, missed a small sum of money, which was left in her unlocked desk the Tuesday afternoon before. There was no school Wednesday on account of the storm. An open window led to the belief that someone had entered in that way and stolen the money. Most unfortunately Percy Glen left home Wednesday and some persons fixed the theft on him. A thorough investigation was made by Chief Franks and it was conclusively proved that by no possibility could he be the one, because he was in Clinton Mass.; at the time the theft must have been committed.
Glen was at home Tuesday night, and left town Wednesday long before the deed was done. Glen returned home Saturday night.

THE DOG'S TAIL.

Its Language In the Chase and When the Animal Is Pleased.

In the case of all hunting dogs, such as foxhounds or wolves, which pack together, the tail is carried aloft and is very free in movement. It is also frequently rendered more conspicuous by are of mixed color. When ranging the long grass of the prairie or jungle, the raised tips of the tail would often be all that an individual member of the band would see of its fellows.

There is no doubt that hounds habitually watch the tails of those in front faint drag is detected suggestive of the presence of a fox, but scarcely sufficient to be sworn to vocally, the tail of the finder is at once set in motion, and the warmer the scent the quicker does It wag. Others, seeing the signal, quickly join the first, and there is an assemblage of waving tails before even the least whimper is heard.

waving ceases, but if it grows stronger when followed up the wagging becomes more and more emphatic until one after another the animals begin to whine and give tongue and stream off in Indian file along the line of scent.

When the pack is in full cry upon a strong scent, the tails cease to wave, but are carried aloft in full view. The moment when the dog most enjoys life is the moment when he sights game. That moment is the time when he wags his tail most vigorously in order to announce his discovery to his fellow

In this way, by the habit of association, he got to wagging his tail whenever he was pleased. The more pleased he is the more vigorously he wags his tail, so that the wagging of a dog's tail under pleasurable emotions can be traced directly to the time when the dog used his tail as a signal of the discovery of his prey .- D. Provan in Scottish-American.

THE LIMIT WAS REACHED.

What Pat Got When He Asked For a Raise In Salary.

A story was often told by the late Charles L. Tiffany of an importunate Contractors Irishman who for many years had been employed as a window washer. His pay had been raised quite as often as was consistent with the dignity of his position, but he seemed always hungry (or probably thirsty) for more. At length the firm decided that the limit was reached. Not so Pat. Going one morning to the inner sanctuary, he sought audience with Mr. Tiffany.

"Good mornin', Mr. Tiffany," he commenced artfully, seeking to preface his errand by disinterested conversation. "Good morning, Patrick," was the answer.

"And how are ye this mornin', Mr. Tiffany?" "Quite well, thank you, Patrick."

"And how are your wife and fami-

"Quite well, thank you, Patrick. But what can I do for you this morning?" "Of've been thinkin', Mr. Tiffany, thot Oi've served ye long and faithful these twenty-folve years and thot Oi sh'ud have a raise in me pay."

"You should be thankful, Patrick, that you have been permitted to serve so distinguished a house as that of Tiffany & Co. for twenty-five years. That, with what we have already done for you, should be sufficient. Good morning, Patrick."

"Good mornin', Mr. Tiffany." Realizing the futility of further words, he left the room. Reaching the outer office, he was hailed by a chorus from the "boys," to whom his periodical pilgrimages had become a standing joke

"What did you get, Pat?" "Faith," was the ready answer, "Oi got permission to kape me job, and Oi tuk it!"-New York Times.

Capacity and Power. A man is worth to himself just what he is capable of enjoying. This means the utmost enlargement of his capacity. He is worth to the world just what he is capable of imparting, and this means the utmost development of every power. WHAT IS TEMPERAMENT!

No Wonder This Child's Brain Is All

In a Muddle. The half dozen blocks about Dupont circle include the homes of as many scientists of national reputation. These gentlemen of course know each other and meet frequently. Not long ago one of their neighbors began to wonder whether such intimate intercourse among scientists was a good thing, his cogitation having had its rise in the following incident:

His little daughter has just reached the age when she asks 200 questions a day. About a month ago her father spoke of some author as lacking the proper "temperament" for writing on history. That word "temperament apparently took root in the youngster's mind. What was temperament? She asked that question twice an hour for an entire week.

Finally her father gave her a note to Professor - and sent her off to find out. That scientist answered the query as follows: "Temperament is an individual tendency to the rise of a certain mental state." Father and daughter wrestled with that a little while and then applied to a second member of the scientific group for help. No. 2 called temperament "an ensemble of physical and mental traits arising from fundamental constitutional differences in individuals." This put the little girl's father completely at sea. So No. 3 was tried. His judgment was that "temperament is the psychic resultant of the whole organic life of the individual." By this time hope was abandoned. But when No. 4 volunteered to make it clear the family spirits revived. "Temperament is a general disposition of the mind," he wrote, "the distinctions of which depend on the dominance of one or the other of the physiological systems."

And now the family dictionary is worn out .- Washington Star.

ANTISEPTICS.

They Do Not Destroy, It Is Said, but Only Arrest Germ Life. The Edinburgh Scotsman begs leave to correct the erroneous belief that implies that antiseptics can prevent de cay. Decay may be arrested without killing the microbe which would pro duce it. A few drops of a solution of carbolic acid added to flour paste will keep it sweet for a certain time, not because the germs in the paste are destroyed, but because these germs are hindered for the time being in their growth and multiplication and because the paste is rendered temporarily an unsuitable soil for the growth of what ever microbes may fall from the air into it.

When the effect of the acid has worn off and disappeared, we see the paste going to the bad as rapidly as if it had not been treated antiseptically at all Molds will grow in it, and it will decay in the fashion familiar to everybody.

It is in this way cold may act as an antiseptic when it is used to preserve meat and fish. There is no destruction but only arrest of germ life. If we wish to kill microbes, therefore, we not only have to use a disinfectant, but we must employ it in proper proportions and see that it thoroughly attacks the germs

Hiding Behind Big Words. A mining expert recently described a lode as traversing "a metamorphic matrix of a somewhat argilloarenaceous composition." This means literally 'a changed mass of a somewhat clayey sandy composition." This in its turn may be translated into plain English as m-u-d. Why choke a puny fact with mur derous polysyllables? Huxley and Dar win, Lyell and Faraday could so write as to be "understanded of the people," and there is a suspicion abroad in these times that the big words so freely used by small men are a device to conceal ignorance and inexact thought rather than a proof of superior knowledge .-Youth's Companion.

Test of the Age of Egs

There is a sure and simple test of age in an egg. Dissolve six ounces of common kitchen salt in a large glassful of water and drop in your eggs, one at a time. An egg one day old will sink to the bottom, but if older it does not reach the bottom. If three days old, it sinks only just below the surface. If five days and over, it floats; and the older it is the more it protrudes from the water.-New York Press.

PATRIOTS' DAY.

The observance of anniversaries, whether the events be of public or of private nature, is always fitting. Today's celebration is peculiarly so, in that it commemorates events which while pertaining to the whole country at large, are especially related to our own section. The Battles of Lexington and Concord, fraught, as they were destined to become, with supreme significance for the colonies, were fought upon Lexington and Concord Greens, by a band of farmers brought together from the immediate neighborhood. Upon Lexington and Concord Greens it was that the blood of those farmers was spilled, consecrating the ground forever more. The day, therefore, belongs to us in a sense of ownership far stronger and more close than to the rest of the country. Its appropriate observance is a duty not to be shirked by us. But after we have given a day up to the public recognition of the events of one morning long ago, let us not lose sight of the fact that the results of that moining's happenings are still with us, and that therefrom are derived obligations which we must meet, or fall short of the standard set up for us. They fought to establish liberty; we must maintain it. In the complexity and the haste of modern life there is little time left for the contemplation of the spiritual. All our energies are spent upon the material. Occasions like the present bring with them some small modicum, at least, of the selfless spirit and the devotion to the ideal which imbued our fathers one bundred and twentyseven years ago.

THE PRICE OF MEAT.

A suggestion recently made with regard to the rise in prices of meat has in it the germ of a development which will undoubtedly some day become potent. There is no question but that the "cornering" of food stuffs and the consequent raising of prices is a wrengful act, and one which should be made unlawful. But reforms come in slowly; legislation is brought about tardily; and meanwhile there is much hardship and suffering. There is, however, one method of alleviation which would be completely effective could it be applied. Should the consumers of meat at the present time combine, and organize a movement whereby they should refrain from buying meat for but a week or two, the packing interests would be obliged to reduce prices immediately in order to prevent total loss on their perishable stock. Such an organization will be a long time in coming, but when it does come it wi'l be effective. the principle that in the people resides ly bought the Daniel Marsh place. The suggestion is but an application of the power.

HANDBOOK OF LEXINGTON.

A handbook of Lexington has lately been issued over the name of Dr. F. S. Piper, the custodian of the Lexington Historical society. Besides many illustrations and a reference map for the convenience of those seeking information as to localities of historic spots and monuments, the book contains an account of the battle of Lexington. Paul Revere's narrative of his ride, a sketch of the town itself, and its places of historic interest, and a complete l'st of the inscriptions on the tablets which mark most terest, and a complete ist of the inscrip-tions on the tablets which mark most of these places. The above features, with the excellent arrangement of the work, make it not only of interest but of real value to the student of local history. These booklets are on sale today. Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale preached Sunday morning a delightfully simple and interesting sermon in the Unitarian church from the text "Ent r thou into the joy of thy Lord." By way of introduction he said it was something of a question at this season of the year with us puritans with something of sadness in our make-up, how we may get the most joy out of this opening season, and out of the summer so near at hand, and out of the richer autumn time. Men in active life frequently return to their homes at night, disappointed that the day has not brought them more substantial re-Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale preached at night, disappointed that the day has not brought them more substantial results. They feel they have missed something. They know they have failed to lay hold of that which was easily within their reach. All sorts of excuses are made by men and women for not partaking of the feast God has provided for them on every side. One has bought a yoke of oxen and must go and prove them; another has married a wife and cannot come; and so we go on with our excuses, and come short of the good things made ready for us. At this season of the year, Dr. Hal-continued, God spreads out a beautiful sunset, but how few see it. He brings within easy vision the beautiful bay, but how few look upon its attractive waters. "Enter thou into the beautiful bay, but how few look upon its attractive waters. "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," and thus take in the glories of earth and sky. The man who has the one talent mistakenty reskons worth by the quantity, and not by the quality of his work while he should know that he who does his best, whatever that may be, has done all so that he may entir into the joy of his Lord. Dr. Haic's entire sermon, which was more in the entire sermon, which was more in the nature of an informal talk, was deeply interesting from beginning to end. The platform meeting at the Unitarian church, last Sunday evening, on the sub-ject of "The Opportunities and Dutles of a Christian Church," proved interesting to a large number assembled. The speakers were Rev. C. A. Allen the postor and Hev. Samuel Elliott, D. D., president of the American Unitarian association. Dr. Elliott's remarks were of an extremely interesting and instructive nature, and ly interesting and instructive nature, and clearly demonstrated his fitness for the position he now holds. Many were disappointed that Chaplain Brown, U. S. N., who was expected to be present to speak, was unable to attend on account of illness, but Mr. Allen promised his appearance for a morning sermon in the near future.

Arlington Locals.

The whist party given in Grand Army hall, Thursday evening, was a complimentary benefit to Murdock McLeod, the janitor of the building. Mr. McLeod has proved himself a faithful servant in the excellent care he has taken, for seven years, of Grand Army hall, being always courteous and obliging. The many soceties patronizing the hall arranged for the benefit given Mr. McLeod. There were present 22 tables at whist. The committee who had the affair in hand. Mrs. Clara Kimball, chairman, and Mrs. Cara Thayer, with Mrs. Gertrude McNeil, had arranged for the evening. Prizes were awarded as follows: first gentleman's prize, Arthur Bendix; second, A. #### GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Next week at the Grand Opera house will be seen Rose Melville in that delightful pastoral comedy drama, "Sis Hopkins," which is now in the third season of its remarkable success. Miss Melville has already appeared at this theatre twice in the title role of this play, and it will be recalled with what marked favor audiences filling the vast auditorlum rightly have received her. Edward E. Rose, author of the stage version of "David Harum," in which W. H. Crane continues so popularly, has still further improved the play for this season's tour. It will be remembered what capital al-Next week at the Grand Opera house It will be remembered what capital alterations he made in the play for lasseason. The story of "Sis Hopkins" does not need repeating at this late date. It is familiar to most all theatre-goers now is familiar to most all theatre-goers now. It is sufficient to say that it is a simple one, and free from the naus ating filth of modern society plays. It deals chiefly with the homely country people of Posey county, Ind. "Sis" is an awkward, ungainly country girl—the daughter of "Pa" Hopkins. She dress is in that queer fashion of gingham pinafore, striped stockings, and pigtail hair put up with odd little side combs.

"Sis." as the play progresses, learns to "dress, an' lie, and be like other people." She becomes a dainty, refined and well educated woman, finally, dressing in the height of fashion; but she goes back to her old country way of dressing at the end of the play to bring back her father's reason. The character of "Sis Hopkins" is original with Miss Melville, and no artist yet has been able to duplicate her quaint mannerisms, her odd, bolting speech, the humorous sayings, teetering walk, etc.
